

Lawrence, Saturday, Feb. 16, 1856.

We finish the publication this week, of the history of the early troubles of Vermont. The reader will observe they commenced with the first settlement of the Territory and continued unabated down to the opening of the Revolutionary War, at which period all minor issues between various sections of the colonies were swallowed up in the all absorbing, engrossing struggle for freedom. That history is suggestive to the people of Kansas. New York is the prototype of Missouri, only the outrages and the crimes which she has perpetrated in Kansas are more enormous than those of her precedent. The parallel ceases with the retaliation of the citizens of Kansas, for we have borne patiently their trampling upon our rights, always hopeful that something would turn up to our advantage before the end came. And we have not been disappointed. In the eyes of the world, in the estimation of the good and brave everywhere, our cause is pure and holy, and unstained by a single drop of blood. And we ourselves have their sympathies, and will have them when the trial hour comes.

Near at hand, nearer than the masses imagine, is the great struggle between Freedom and Slavery, between the North and the South, which is to eclipse our own difficulties in the magnitude of its character. The rising gloom of civil war lowers upon us fearfully. The experiment of a Republican Government in league with Tyranny in its worst form is about to fail—has failed.

Pleasant Weather once more.

We record the fact with pleasure, that fair weather has taken the place of the unusually long and cold spell with which everything and everybody in Kansas have suffered for two months past. The mercury has reached 45 deg. above zero, and keeps in that neighborhood; business of all kinds has taken a fresh start, and the "good time," which has been so long getting here, has come at last.

P. S. It is not safe to write about the weather one day ahead of time! At present writing, (Saturday noon) the wind is blowing a perfect hurricane, and the snow begins to fall. The atmosphere is 20 deg. colder than it was last night.

Riley City.

A town site with the above title, has been located immediately opposite the ruins of Pawnee, on the south side of the Kansas river, near Ft. Riley. We learn that several houses have been erected, but improvements to any very great extent will not be commenced until spring. We shall be happy to record the progress of settlements in the upper country, and will be thankful to our friends for any information which will enable us to give correct statements.

Wolves.

The wolves are getting ferocious up in Iowa. The press records the fact that several persons have been destroyed by them during the late cold weather. There are wolves in Kansas, but we have not learned of any outrage by them, and do not contemplate any half as brutal in character as have been exhibited by those wearing the "human face divine," and rejoicing in the appellation of Border Ruffians.

The New York Kansas League.

This association give notice that they have made arrangements to resume their business of sending settlers to Kansas on the opening of the Missouri river. They offer to give all information gratuitously, at their office, or by letter, and to furnish tickets at the lowest prices, with letters commending the bearers to the friendly attention of the Company's agents on the way.

The League is said to have been conducted with very gratifying success, although under difficulties wholly unexpected. Those on whom the business has been thrown have had to perform their duties with little notice and less support from the public. This state of things has, however, been accounted favorable to united and harmonious effort in conformity with the principles and objects of the enterprise.

It is mentioned as worthy of note that not a dollar has been paid to hire, support or assist any settler going to Kansas; that the League, by giving information and providing tickets at low rates, securing safe, comfortable and speedy transportation, have sent to Kansas, by their direct agency, about three thousand persons, and by indirect influence, a very large number more; and that they have a prospect of doing much more this year than the last, New York being proved to be the most important point in the country for this operation.

These facts present a marked contrast to the projects proposed at the South, where a plan has been seriously considered, for enlisting the legislatures of several States to levy a tax on negroes, to be expended in hiring two or three hundred men in each State to go to Kansas, in order to vote and fight for slavery, paying all their subsistence and expenses. If ten States should send three hundred men each, they would accomplish only a small part of what the Kansas League performed last year by the efforts of two gentlemen in New York city.

$2,000 Reward.

It is said that the Border Ruffians at Independence have offered a reward of $2,000 for the body of Gen. Jas. H. Lane, to be delivered dead or alive in that city. The General desires to know who offers the reward, and he will go down in person to get the money. That amount, he says, would be very acceptable in these short times.

The First Church in Lawrence.

Agreeably to a public notice, issued on the 1st inst., the citizens of Lawrence, friendly to the erection of a church, assembled at the Free State Hotel, on Sunday, the 3d inst., to hear a report from Mr. E. B. Whitman, respecting aid from the East, and the prospects for the erection of a church the coming season.

The meeting was called to order by the Rev. E. Nute, and G. W. Brown was chosen Chairman, and Wm. Hutchinson Secretary.

After a statement of the object of the meeting by Mr. Nute, the report of Mr. Whitman was called for. Mr. W. proceeded to explain, in detail, the origin and progress of the movement at the East to furnish aid for religion and education in Kansas. He stated that he had made a tour in the Territory last spring, to ascertain, by personal observation, the true state of affairs here, and had been gratified to be able, on his return East, to report most favorably, both in regard to the country, the people, and their political prospects. But with all these encouragements, it was easily seen that the religious and educational wants of the people were liable to be overlooked, or to receive less attention than was due them.

A government was being framed here under peculiar circumstances; with all the exciting scenes of our border life, in addition to the usual pioneer demands, it was evident that something must be done outside of our own resources. The moral and religious wants of those already here should be supplied, and the inducements for a healthy emigration augmented. No government could be permanently founded that had not its basis in the eternal principles of the Gospel.

The religious community at the East were alive to these considerations. The American Unitarian Association had sent their missionary, Rev. E. Nute, Jr., to the Territory, and Mr. W. found, on his return, not only a disposition, but an earnest desire to furnish means for religious and educational purposes. A strong prejudice existed there, among all denominations, against building churches at the west. In respect to these, it was felt that there had been much mismanagement, but Kansas seemed to come with additional claims; and when the Unitarian Association proposed to become the responsible agents for the expenditure of these funds, a disposition was manifested to furnish them on case.

In order to provide, as far as possible, against all the damages and uncertainties peculiar to Kansas, the various objections raised in the minds of prudent and cautious men, were met and obviated by an arrangement, by which the property was for the time being, to be held by the Association, and the funds furnished, to be considered as a loan, to be repaid by the Society, when it should become able, to be re-invested, in the same way, at some other point in the Territory, and to be kept as a perpetual fund for such purposes. This money had been asked for religious and educational purposes, and thus a twofold chord had been touched. It had been hoped that sufficient funds would be obtained to erect both a church and a school house, but as matters stood now, it was probable that the school room would be embraced in the same walls as the church.

The first appeal was made at Old Concord, Mass., and met a generous response of between one and two hundred dollars. The Societies in Boston, Dorchester, Providence, Portsmouth, Salem, Taunton, Chicopee, Cambridge, Waltham, and many other places, readily responded. Several of the first men in Massachusetts lent their aid and sympathy. Hon. Edward Everett and Hon. S. A. Elliott, of Boston, were warmly interested in the movement. All classes, high and low, rich and poor, seemed anxious to share in the work. The result, gratifying as it was in the furnishing of the funds, was yet more so as an index of the interest felt in the people of Kansas by their friends and neighbors, who had remained at home. The money pledged—between three and four thousand dollars, with one thousand raised here—it was believed would erect a neat and commodious church. The gift of a bell, and the promise of a clock, rendered a tower to the church essential, and it was expected that additional means would be procured to secure both that and the school room. The additional fixtures for a church had also been provided by individual munificence; an elegant pulpit bible, by the members of Mr. Nute's former parish in Chicopee; the communion service by Bigelow, Brothers and Renard, of Boston; hymn books for the pews by the Rev. Mr. Ware's society, in Cambridge. Hymn books and bibles for the Sunday school had also been given, and an elegant Sunday school library by the children of the Sunday schools. The Unitarian Association had given sixty volumes to begin a parish library, and an addition had been made to this by Messrs. Little & Brown, booksellers. It was expected that plans would be adopted in Boston, during the winter, by which a complete and valuable parish library would be secured. Encouragement had also been received in regard to an organ. The bell—to be cast expressly for the purpose, with a suitable inscription—was to be the gift of a single individual, and the clock for the tower, in case no one appeared to furnish it, had been pledged by some of the young men of Boston.

Mr. W. stated that he had authority to draw for the funds, and to superintend the work. The excavation had been made, the stone material was upon the ground, and he had contracted for the lumber, and as soon as the weather would admit of it, he should push it on vigorously to completion.

In so far as these funds were to remain in the Territory, subject to transfers for religious and educational purposes, they would be a public benefit. He believed that both the hearts and purses of our friends East, were still open, and, as our needs required, would still respond. Let the church and school house appear simultaneously with the habitation of the pioneer, and we should be a happy and prosperous community.

Mr. Whitman was followed by the Rev. Nute, saying what the modesty of Mr. W. prevented him from saying: that this movement had originated with Mr. Whitman, and by his individual efforts had been carried successfully through. His services had been gratuitously rendered for many weeks, appealing to religious congregations on Sunday, and making private applications during the week, and that we were under great obligations to him for the energy, tact and perseverance, which had secured the funds alluded to.

A committee of five persons was then appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the grateful sense of the meeting to the donors at the East for their munificent kindness. The following gentlemen were chosen: Rev. E. Nute, Jr., Wm. Hutchinson, G. W. Deitzler, B. W. Woodward, and Morris Hunt, with instructions to report at an adjourned meeting.

Mr. Nute spoke further upon the formation of a religious society, which was one of the objects of the meeting, and at the close of his remarks offered a constitution for the same, which, after some discussion, was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Hunt moved the appointment of a committee of three to circulate the constitution for signatures, with authority to call a meeting to complete the organization. Messrs. E. Nute, G. W. Hutchinson, and E. B. Whitman were chosen. Adjourned for one week.

W. HUTCHINSON, Sec'y.

SUNDAY EVENING, Feb. 10.

The adjournment. The meeting was called to order by the Chairman. The Rev. Mr. Nute, from the committee, reported the following address to the donors at the East, which was unanimously adopted, and the committee authorized to sign it, with power to add others to their number:

To the contributors to the fund of the American Unitarian Association for building a house of worship in Lawrence, Kansas:

CHRISTIAN FRIENDS:—We desire to convey to you some expression of our thankfulness for the liberal provision which you have made for our highest welfare. We have been greatly cheered and gratified, as from time to time, we have heard of the efforts that were being made among our friends at the East to aid us in securing to ourselves and the community here being gathered the privileges of Christian worship and instruction.

The full report that has now reached us by the coming of our friend, Mr. E. B. WHITMAN, to whom we are under great obligations for the zealous and efficient service by which this work has been furthered, augments our gratitude and makes us unwilling any longer to defer the acknowledgment, which for some time we have desired to offer.

Among the deprivations to which we have been subjected by our removal into the wilderness, this, for the relief of which you have so generously come to our aid, has been among the most prominent and the most deeply lamented. As the Lord's day has come round we have greatly deplored the absence of its accustomed privileges. With much sadness we have missed the sound of Sabbath bells and the opportunity of joining the congregation of friends and neighbors in the worship and instruction of the sanctuary. We have been well aware that without these privileges our community could not attain to any high degree of prosperity, nor could we have a sufficient security for the continuance of domestic peace and happiness. We could not hope to be able for some time to come to supply this deficiency without aid from abroad. To secure those things that are essential as a protection against sickness and distress, must, under ordinary circumstances for the first few years, exhaust all the resources of the pioneer settler. But it has been our lot to encounter some peculiar and serious difficulties. The necessity of defending ourselves against hostile neighbors has hindered us from providing a sufficient protection against the inclemency of the winter, which has thus far been unusually severe. The cost of all the necessities of life has from the same causes been greatly increased.

Subjected to many of the inconveniences of an army besieged in a hostile country, or of an infant colony beset by cruel savages, your message of good cheer has been to us peculiarly gratifying. Your liberality supplies our pressing need in a provision that cannot fail, except through our neglect, in greatly helping us to do and to endure whatever may yet lie in the way of our duty.

Eagerly desiring that our future course may manifest the sincerity of these feeble acknowledgments, that we may prove ourselves worthy of the benefit which we have received at your hands, and that you may ever share with us in the joy and profit toward which you have been our helpers, we remain, yours in the bonds of brotherly love.

Gen. Chas. Robinson then offered the following resolution:

"Regarding moral and religious teaching as essential to good order and prosperity in a community, as well as to the promotion of personal piety, and having the fullest confidence in the Rev. Ephraim Nute, Jr., as a citizen, minister and Christian, he having proved himself every way worthy of his high calling, commanding the approbation and respect of the whole people, we hereby pledge to him our zealous co-operation in establishing and supporting the religious society under his charge, and we desire to return our thanks to the American Unitarian Association, who have interested themselves in our behalf in sending him among us, and, for the present, aiding us to support religious institutions."

On motion of Mr. Hutchinson, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we return our heartfelt thanks to Mr. E. B. Whitman, for the efficient services which he so generously rendered in raising the funds for the building of a church, in this place, among our friends in the East.

On motion of Mr. Deitzler, it was voted that the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretary, and published in the papers of this city; also, in the Christian Enquirer, of New York, and the Christian Register, of Boston; and that a copy be forwarded to American Unitarian Association.

Voted to adjourn.
